

December 2017 Newsletter

Building Partnerships Conference 2017 is in the books.

MNPCHA members and partners, exhibitors and sponsors gathered at the Victoria Inn, Winnipeg from Nov 21-23 for the 5th Annual Building Partnerships Conference. The conference featured presentations by Shaun Loney (An Army of Problem Solvers) and Tim Hague (winner of The Amazing Race Canada).

Spirit of Housing Award winners for 2017 were announced. They are Charles Huband, Janette Brown and Menno Peters. More information on the accomplishments of these deserving recipients is published on the MNPCHA website.

Three concurrent speaker sessions each with a choice of four topics gave conference participants plenty of choice to further their knowledge about housing issues. A number of speakers have made their presentations available for downloading.

Thank you to all who participated in the conference including exhibitors in the trade show. Thank you also to our sponsors without whom this event would not be possible.

We look forward to seeing everyone again next October at the 6th Annual Building Partnerships Conference to be held in Brandon.

Federal Government Announces National Housing Strategy

On November 23, the Federal Government unveiled its National Housing Strategy. Over the next 10 years, $40 billion has been earmarked for increasing the supply of non-profit housing as well as retrofitting existing units. A substantial portion will be conditional on shared cost agreements between Ottawa and the provinces.

Laurie Socha, MNPFA President, welcomed the announcement as something that moves the country in the right direction in terms of making affordable housing more readily available.

Business Case for Social Housing: KPMG sends report to the provincial government.

Recently the provincial government received a report from KPMG called Manitoba Fiscal Performance Review: Business Case - Social Housing. In this report, KPMG outlines a number of options to the province related to the provision of social housing, including transfer of significant housing stock to private and/or community-based providers. MNPFA invites you to review the report and provide us with your thoughts and input that will be used to help the MNPFA Board of Directors to formulate its response.
