

Nicole Harris Founder & President, Solv Communications

Nicole Harris is a 25-year communications veteran with a passion for business storytelling and issues management. She is also the Founder and President of Solv Communications - a PR and Reputation Management company.

As a former broadcast news anchor and journalist, Nicole has covered some of Canada's top stories in real estate, property management and non-profit housing.

It's her experience in journalism and PR that gives her a unique insight into the power of building brand trust through strategic communication.

Nicole's holistic approach to issues management and her creativity to spot opportunities, have helped clients successfully protect and promote their brands.

Nicole has provided strategic communications to the President of Iceland; she's also helped those in non-profit housing and property development companies maintain a strong public image in the face of challenges.

We're excited to have Nicole here today and look forward to a great day of learning from her expertise in media relations and issues management.
